TENT FOR SEVEN

a camping adventure gone south out west

BY MARTY OHLHAUT WITH GRACE LY

Marty Ohlhaut loved the great outdoors, and he loved his family. Long hours at work had kept him away from both, so he was excited about taking off with his wife and five children for the Canadian Rockies. Now that his kids were getting older, he knew this might be their last camping trip together, and he wanted it to be extra memorable.

But as soon as they arrived, everything started going wrong. From overcrowded campgrounds and contaminated water to close encounters with red ants and bears, they experienced one problem after another. Then when tragedy struck, Marty suddenly had to face the possible loss of a loved one. With the help of mysterious strangers in one of the world's most beautiful, vast locations, he fought to keep his family alive and his sanity intact.

Thirty years later, he shares the story of that ill-fated vacation in collaboration with his daughter Grace Ly. Through candor and wit reminiscent of Bill Bryson, Tent for Seven captures both the grandeur and the dangers of the wilderness as Marty learned just how much his wife and children meant to him—and how fragile life could be.

Good Morning, Hope

A True Story of Refugee Twin Sisters and Their Triumph over War, Poverty, and Heartbreak

by Argita and Detina Zalli

Born in poverty-stricken Albania, twin sisters Argita and Detina Zalli always dreamed of becoming doctors. Their parents scrimped and sacrificed, committed to giving them a better life. But then the unthinkable happened. In 1997, the government collapsed, plunging the country into anarchy and civil war.

The twins' dream unraveled along with their homeland. Their parents had to find a way to leave and save their daughters' futures—not to mention their very lives.

It took over two years for the Zalli family to escape. After several dangerous attempts, they finally made it to England, where the thirteen-year-old twins believed everything would be much better. They soon found out otherwise. Now refugees, the girls were mercilessly bullied and constantly afraid they would be sent back to Albania and their parents would be sent to jail.

Still, the twins persevered and learned how to navigate their harsh new reality. When tragedy struck yet again, threatening what they held most dear, the girls had to come to terms with the high price they had all paid to survive.

In Good Morning, Hope, Argita and Detina share their harrowing story of courage and resilience. It was the strength of their family, particularly the sisters' unbreakable bond as twins, that nurtured and sustained them throughout their perilous ordeal.

REVIEWS

“Readers will be fascinated as the twins recount and reflect on the stresses and daily terrors of becoming refugees. . . . A haunting reminder of how precious democracy is.”—Kirkus Reviews

“The Zalli twins powerfully detail the emotional tides and revelations . . . in the Albanian experience and stories of refugee survival, prejudice, and integration.”—Midwest Book Reviews

NEVER SAY INVISIBLE

A Memoir of Living and Being Seen with ALS

by Jeremy Schreiber

Jeremy Schreiber was on top of the world—athletic, newly married, successful. And then something went terribly wrong. In this moving memoir, he shares his journey after he received a terrifying diagnosis: ALS.

As the devastating disease robbed him of movement and speech, he was abandoned by his wife and betrayed by a society that shuns people with disabilities. But it's not all doom and gloom. He found love, support, and a powerful purpose.

While fighting for his independence and then for his life, Jeremy gave his all to the ALS and disability communities. Never Say Invisible is his legacy gift. Smart, clever, and humorous, his story is a testament to what can be learned and achieved despite a terminal illness.

Jeremy died on October 29, 2021, before he could finish this book. Sandra Jonas Publishing is proud to collaborate with his parents, Fred and Ronnye Schreiber, to carry on his work.

REVIEWS

“With honesty, poignancy, passion, and humor, [this book] will open your eyes and possibly your heart.”—Sue Monk Kidd, New York Times bestselling author

“A singular, unforgettable take on what it is like to have your world cracked open by extreme physical disability.”—Mary Roach, New York Times bestselling author

“You will finish this book and feel nothing but actual love for the man who wrote it. You will thank him for making you remember that every second is precious and that we are all so lucky to be alive.”—Augusten Burroughs, New York Times bestselling author

“Jeremy approaches his devastating diagnosis with courage and humor—and in doing so delivers a wake-up call that urges us to rethink the way we see, or fail to see, those with disabilities.”—David Litt, New York Times bestselling author

JEREMY SCHREIBER was an entrepreneur, writer, and ALS warrior. He first started to write and speak about his own experiences after being diagnosed with ALS in January 2018. Drawing from his personal story, Jeremy offered a unique perspective into a world where injustice is frequent and unapologetically out in the open. He was passionate about helping and motivating those with disabilities to improve their lives and overcome the challenges they face. He also gave a voice to the people society has rendered invisible, covering such topics as travel, new treatments, medical marijuana, and technology. After a long battle with ALS, Jeremy passed away in October 2021.

Why Some Animals Eat Their Young

A SURVIVOR'S GUIDE TO MOTHERHOOD

By Dallas Louis

When Dallas Louis decided that all she wanted was to meet and marry her Prince Charming and become a mom, she had no idea what was in store for her. But she would soon find out. After only seven months of dating the love of her life, she married him, and within the course of twenty-six months, she gave birth to three children.

In this hilarious book, Dallas shares highlights of what happened in her world when all her dreams came true. Broken bones, vacations gone amok, bizarre illnesses, home renovation disasters, crazy relatives—she wants readers to find comfort in knowing they aren't the only ones suffering from post-traumatic stress syndrome or buyer's remorse. And, yes, it's okay to admit that both conditions apply to parenting, though hopefully not all the time.

Channeling Erma Bombeck, Dallas will tell you the things your friends won't and the things other books are too afraid to print. With her irreverent humor and brash "tell it like it is" style, she'll help you laugh at everyday situations, easing the pressure of the toughest job in the world: being a mom.

REVIEWS

"Earthy, matter-of-fact, and simply hilarious, as well as thought-provoking. Mothers seeking a bit of humor about their child-rearing experiences will find it in droves."

—Midwest Book Review

"Dallas's comedic take on all the highs and lows of motherhood is hilarious and relatable."—Jackie Miller, Snarky Mother Nutrition

"Reading this book is like having a cup of coffee with a friend—a good, brutally honest one. [It] will remind you that despite all your chaos, you are not alone."

—Kerri Pomarolli, comedian and author of *Confessions of the Proverbs 32 Woman

DALLAS LOUIS grew up in Austin, Texas. She earned a BA degree in Christianity from Houston Baptist University and served as the women's ministry director of her church for seven years. A former field leader for MOPS (Mothers of Preschoolers) International, Dallas now travels the country speaking to women's groups, encouraging them in their faith, parenting, marriages, and ministries. Her first book, Girlfriends, Giggles, and God, is a thirty-one-day, humor-filled devotional, reflecting upon circumstances that arise in every woman's household. She lives in Houston with her husband and three children.

the weight of air

a story of the lies about addiction and the truth about recovery

by david poses

While his wife and two-year-old daughter watched TV in the living room, David Poses was in the kitchen, measuring the distance from his index finger to his armpit. He needed to be sure he could pull the trigger with a shotgun barrel in his mouth. Twenty-six inches. Thirty-two years old. Thirteen years in a double life fueled by heroin addiction and mental illness.

In The Weight of Air, David chronicles his struggle to overcome mental illness and addiction. By age nineteen, he had been through medical detox, inpatient rehab, twelve-step programs, and a halfway house. He saw his drug use as a symptom of depression, but the experts insisted that addiction was the problem. Over the next thirteen years, he went from one relapse to the next, drowning in guilt, shame, and secrets, until he finally found an evidence-based treatment that not only saved his life, but helped him thrive.

With grit, humor, and brutal honesty, David's story exposes the danger in traditional recovery models: they actually increase stigma and the risk of over-dose, relapse, and death. As depression and addiction rates skyrocket and overdose fatalities surge, The Weight of Air is a scathing indictment of our failed response to the opioid crisis—and proof that success is possible.

REVIEWS

“Soulful, achingly honest . . . A potent addition to the literature on drug addiction and recovery.”—Kirkus Review (starred)

“David Poses’s unflinching memoir takes you to the dark corners of addiction—and shows there’s a way out.”—Eric Eyre, Pulitzer Prize winner and author of *Death in Mud Lick

“A searingly honest addiction memoir with a much-needed perspective.”
—Maia Szalavitz, New York Times best-selling author of Unbroken Brain

A Rendezvous to Remember

A Memoir of Joy and Heartache
at the Dawn of the Sixties

By Terry Marshall and Ann Garretson Marshall

Frustrated with the dating scene, Ann Garretson decided she couldn't leave love to chance. So she set her sights on "The One": her pen pal, Lieutenant Jack Sigg, a tank commander on the German-Czech border. In 1964, she skipped her college commencement to tour Europe with him, hoping to return as his fiancée. But a month into their rendezvous, her best friend, Terry, proposed marriage—by mail—throwing all their lives into turmoil.

Jack offered the military life Ann had grown up with. Terry, a conscientious objector, would leave for the Peace Corps at summer's end, unless the draft board intervened and sent him to jail. Her dilemma: she loved them both.

Ann had to make an agonizing choice—a choice made all that much harder by her meddling parents, Terry's passionate pleas, and Jack's irresistible charm.

A Rendezvous to Remember is an intimate portrayal of relationships in the early sixties, written by a young woman finding her way in a changing world and by the man who ultimately won her heart. Provocative and delightfully uncensored, this coming-of-age memoir is a tribute to the enduring power of love and family.

REVIEWS

"The story transcends personal autobiography alone, charting the course of not just two disparate lives, but a nation."—Midwest Book Review

THE PALE-FACED LIE

A TRUE STORY

BY DAVID CROW

Growing up on the Navajo Indian Reservation, David Crow and his siblings idolized their dad, a self-taught Cherokee who loved to tell his children about his World War II feats. But as time passed, David discovered the other side of Thurston Crow, the ex-con with his own code of ethics that justified cruelty, violence, lies—even murder. Intimidating David with beatings, Thurston coerced his son into doing his criminal bidding. David’s mom, too mentally ill to care for her children, couldn’t protect him.

Through sheer determination, David managed to get into college and achieve success. When he finally found the courage to refuse his father’s criminal demands, he unwittingly triggered a plot of revenge that would force him into a deadly showdown with Thurston Crow.

Raw and palpable, The Pale-Faced Lie is an inspirational story about the power of forgiveness and the strength of the human spirit.

AWARDS & REVIEWS

Awards: Spur Award Winner for Best Western First Nonfiction Book, Spur Award Finalist for Best Western Contemporary Nonfiction, IPPY Silver Award, Next Generation Indie Award, International Book Award, Readers’ Favorite Gold

“This painful memoir . . . delivers a truthful and ultimately empowering missive about the long shadow cast by an abusive parent.”—Publishers Weekly

“For fans of Tara Westover’s Educated, The Pale-Faced Lie: A True Story is a disturbing yet captivating memoir of how one man’s psychopathic delusions can imprison an entire family.”—New York Journal of Books

“Crow’s memoir is cinematically gripping. . . . An extraordinary remembrance that’s both gut-wrenching and inspiring.”—Kirkus Reviews

“[Crow] has considerable wisdom to impart and an unexpected ending that will linger in memory. I promise that you’ve never read a book quite like this one.”
—Jeff Guinn, New York Times best-selling author

DAVID CROW spent his early years on the Navajo Indian Reservation in Arizona and New Mexico. Through grit, resilience, and a thirst for learning, he escaped his abusive childhood, graduated from college, and built a successful lobbying firm in Washington, DC. Today, David is a sought-after speaker, giving talks to various businesses and trade organizations around the world. An advocate for women, he is donating a percentage of his royalties from The Pale-Faced Lie to Barrett House, a homeless shelter for women in Albuquerque. David and his wife, Patty, live in the suburbs of DC.

RECIPES for a SACRED LIFE

true stories and a few miracles

BY RIVVY NESHAMA

On a dark winter night with little to do, Rivvy Neshama took a “Find Your Highest Purpose” quiz. And the funny thing was, she found it: to live a sacred life. Problem was, she didn’t know how.

But she set out to learn. And in the weeks and months that followed, she began to remember and encounter all the people and experiences featured in this book—from her father’s jokes to her mother’s prayers, from Billie in Harlem to a stranger in Salzburg, and from warm tortillas to the humble oatmeal. Each became a story, like a recipe passed down, beginning with her mother and her simple toast to life.

Neshama’s true tales, a memoir of sorts, are filled with love, warmth, and timeless wisdom. They ground us, and they lift us up. They make us laugh, and they make us cry. And most of all, they connect us more deeply with the grace and meaning of our lives.

WATERMELON SNOW

A NOVEL

BY WILLIAM A. LIGGETT

Deep within the melting Blue Glacier in the Washington wilderness, climate scientist Dr. Kate Landry makes a remarkable discovery. Determined to conceal it from colleagues eager to steal her work, she must distract the behavioral scientist NASA sends to study her team.

From the moment he sets foot on the ice, Dr. Grant Poole finds himself in a strange world of unexpected beauty but fraught with extreme dangers he has tried his whole life to avoid. Greeted with suspicion, he soon realizes Kate is hiding something.

When a mysterious illness strikes her crew and an intense storm engulfs their tiny research station, Kate can no longer shield the truth from Grant. Thrown together in a struggle to survive, they are trapped between keeping Kate's secret and protecting millions of people.

Time is running out. Can they find a way to save everyone and still preserve Kate's discovery? Or will she unleash a pandemic far worse than the world has ever seen?

Fans of Michael Crichton and Robin Cook will enjoy this fast-paced adventure novel full of suspense and surprises.

REVIEWS

"Liggett does a first-rate job of building suspense as his story unwinds . . . If you like chill-worthy excitement balanced with cold reality, chances are you'll like this icy adventure."—US Review of Books

"A fast-paced adventure that is hard to put down . . . an excellent blend of intrigue and science especially recommended for fans of 'cli-fi' (climate change science fiction) and newcomers to the genre alike."—Midwest Book Review

WILLIAM LIGGETT writes fiction that blends behavioral and earth sciences in the new cli-fi (climate fiction) literary genre. His goal is to paint a hopeful future, based on solutions to global warming. He holds a BS in geology and an MA in education, both from Stanford University, and a PhD in applied social psychology from New York University. Among the many positions he has held over the years, he taught in high school and college, conducted behavioral science studies for IBM, and consulted with health care and educational organizations. He and his wife, Nancy, live in Boulder, Colorado.

HORSES, HOPES & SLIPPERY SLOPES

BY RICH ISRAEL

In this spirited memoir of adventure and self-discovery, Rich Israel takes us on his journey during the tumultuous and transformative sixties. Eschewing societal norms, he hitchhikes across the country, tries his hand at mining, works at a circus, and rides a horse hundreds of miles through the Rocky Mountain wilderness—all the while, the draft and the Vietnam War are nipping at his heels.

Join Rich and his canine companion, Charlie, as they encounter one colorful character after another, from a rifle-toting hippie to a loudmouthed carnival boss to a sultry flower child, whose bewitching powers lead to lust and longing—and heartbreak. A consummate storyteller, Rich peppers his writing with wit and sensitivity, as well as insights often revealed through mind-blowing acid trips.

If you were there during this unique period in American history, Groovin' is certain to spark treasured memories. If not, you will get to enjoy the flavor and exhilaration associated with catching that phenomenal wave.

A MEMOIR

BY HOWARD SHULMAN

Just three days after he was born, Howard Shulman contracted an infection that devoured his face. Abandoned at the hospital by his parents, he became a ward of New Jersey under the care of a state-employed experimental surgeon. Throughout the early years of his life, Howard underwent innumerable skin and bone grafts and reconstructive surgeries that left him with a butchered body and a river of anger coursing through his veins.

Running from the Mirror is the poignant true story of one man's struggle to survive against staggering odds and create a meaningful life for himself.

With unapologetic candor, Howard gives an unflinching account of growing up a bullied outcast, with no family to officially call his own. Shuffled between foster homes, he is emancipated at sixteen and begins working as a dishwasher while living in a one-room walk-up in New Jersey. Through street smarts and grit, he eventually finds success as the owner of a popular nightclub in San Diego. Along the way, a European actress, a schoolteacher, and a fiery Latina help transform his life.

Filled with heart-wrenching suffering as well as soul-lifting joy, Running from the Mirror is a testament to the resilience of the human spirit.

AWARDS & REVIEWS

Awards: First Horizon Legacy Nonfiction, Eric Hoffer Grand Prize Short List, 2018 Montaigne Medal Finalist

"Compelling memoir . . . [Running from the Mirror] provides a memorable reading experience, as well as an education." —US Review of Books

"Vivid and engrossing from start to finish. As much as Shulman is influenced by his physical appearance and his childhood traumas, he is also driven by an inner resolve to create a better life for himself." —Midwest Book Review

HOWARD SHULMAN lost a good part of his face to a staph infection shortly after he was born, and his parents abandoned him. He became a ward of the state of New Jersey and spent his early childhood confined to a hospital. Years later, a veteran of the foster care system and a homeless dropout, Howard did what he had to do to turn his life around, ultimately becoming the owner of a thriving business. He currently lives in San Diego with his wife and two stepdaughters.

I'LL RUN TILL THE SUN GOES DOWN

A Memoir About Depression & Discovering Art

BY DAVID SANDUM

David Sandum appeared to have it all: a beautiful young family and a promising career ahead as a business consultant. But his life started veering off course, and upon returning to his native Scandinavia, he fell into an inexplicable, deep depression.

I'll Run Till the Sun Goes Down is a searingly honest account of David's struggle to overcome his crippling mental illness. After years of hopeless despair, bleak hospitalizations, and shattered dreams, he is finally saved by his art. The paintbrush becomes his lifeline.

Richly illustrated with the work of the artists who have inspired him as well as samples of his own drawings and paintings, this memoir offers both a compelling read and a visual story of David's courageous battle with depression.

AWARDS & REVIEWS

Awards: First Horizon Award Winner, The da Vinci Eye Award Finalist, Eric Hoffer Micro Press Award Winner, Eric Hoffer Grand Prize Short List, Southwest Book Design & Production President's Choice Award

"A groundbreaking book that is visually stunning, psychologically hard-hitting, and emotionally mesmerizing."—US Review of Books

"Honest and open, painful and raw, but also reflective and forward looking. It is insightful and useful, not only for those who struggle with mental health, but also for their families, friends, and colleagues."—Tom Egeland, best-selling author of *Relic

"David Sandum affords us a rare glimpse into a world often misunderstood, even by those who find themselves living in it. . . . Sandum's awakening to art and its practice, while he is still in the grips of the disease, is a testament to the infinite wisdom of creativity."—Nat George, visual artist and curator, Los Angeles

DAVID SANDUM was born in Gothenburg, Sweden, and lived several years as a young man in the United States. He attended the University of Utah and graduated in 1999 with a BA in speech communication. When he became ill with depression, he turned to writing and art to grapple with his symptoms. A thriving painter today, he earned international acclaim in 2020 by founding TwitterArtExhibit, a social media initiative that enlists artists to help raise funds for local charities. This annual event has gone global, taking place in such cities as Los Angeles, Orlando, and New York City. David lives with his wife in Moss, Norway.

OFF MY ROCKER

ONE MAN'S TASTY, TWISTED, STAR-STUDDED
QUEST FOR EVERLASTING MUSIC

BY KENNY WEISSBERG

He messed with James Brown's perfect hair. He counted a pile of cash with Aretha Franklin in her hotel room. He ate popcorn with Leonard Cohen. He cured a dying sparrow with Joan Baez. He got bamboozled by Chuck Berry.

Kenny Weissberg followed the music his entire career. A disc jockey, critic, rock singer, bandleader, and concert promoter, he lived all his childhood dreams—some of which turned into nightmares.

Off My Rocker presents a rollicking, backstage look at the joys and painful realities of a life devoted to music. During his early years as a radio personality, Weissberg basks in the creative glow of the free-spirited, post-Woodstock era but later rebels against the soulless corporate takeover of the music he's loved forever. Along the way, he detours to the dark side, succumbing to the greed, deceit, theft, and drugs that plague the entertainment industry.

In lively prose and vivid detail, Weissberg shares stories about the eccentric cast of characters who cross his path, including a spectacular array of showbiz legends. Equal parts spicy confessional and pop-culture adventure, with trenchant insights throughout, this page-turner of a memoir will stay with you long after the closing credits.

KENNY WEISSBERG has been a music junkie since he got his first transistor radio at age seven. After graduating from the University of Wisconsin in 1970, he traveled west to Boulder, Colorado, where he played an integral part in the music and media communities for more than a decade as a DJ/talk show host, rock critic, and the lead singer/guitarist for his band, Kenny & the Kritix. In 1983, Kenny moved to San Diego and produced the internationally acclaimed Humphrey's Concerts by the Bay series for twenty-three years while hosting the award-winning Music Without Boundaries radio show on five stations. Kenny lives in San Diego with his wife, Helen Redman.
